Paul E. Fitzwater, music supervisor in the city schools and one of the more ardent fishing fans in Fayette County, and George Schiller, a junior at WHS, were among the many fishermen on the banks of the different streams in the county with their poles and ready for action Sunday morning.
After sitting on the banks of the North Fork of Paint Creek out by New Holland for a long time with just a few "nibbles" now and then, Paul and George were about to give up their trip as bad luck. About the same time there was a big tug on Paul's line and they both started pulling in their catch very slowly so as not to lose it. While Paul was pulling it in, George was trying to get it in the net. They finally succeeded and pulled in a 10 1/4 pound carp, one of the largest caught around these parts this year.
I heard they had it for dinner Monday and it was pronounced "very delicious."

A few days ago while walking through one of the uptown alleys, I noticed dozens of nails, some bright, some bent and others rusty, scattered over the paving of the alley.
I mentioned the fact to City Manager Edwin Ducey, and he said that some of "the boys" who are put on the streets to work out fines would be given the job of clearing the alleys of nails and other articles injurious to tires.
Monday I passed through the same alley and found it had been swept clean of nails and other articles, and I know every auto owner who uses the alleys is appreciative of the efforts of Edwin to hold the punctures to the minimum.

Taking no chance on facing a tin can shortage later in the season at packing time the Fayette Canning Co. is now unloading several carloads of them, lacquered inside, for the corn, tomato and pumpkin pack.
Each canning plant is allowed sufficient cans to pack the acreage planned, but whether the tin supply will be sufficient to supply the demand next year, is still unknown.
As I watched the tin cans roll down a chute for storage, I thought of how nine-tenths of the world's available tin supply is now in the hands of the Japanese as result of seizure of tin producing areas in the Pacific.

Mrs. H. H. Whited, 710 Yeoman Street, heaved a sigh of relief as she tore open the envelope covered by "Passed by Censor" stamps . . . for inside was a letter from her son, Buddy Moore. . . Not since last January 16, had Mrs. Whited known where her boy was . . . except that he was in the army.
Buddy is now in Australia . . . he couldn't say just where because the censor would have deleted that . . . but the letter was welcome to his mother . . . although, as she said, "he didn't have much to say except that he was well and happy."

Bud was born in Washington C. H. . . and had lived here all of his 22 years . . . until he went on his big adventure . . . He enlisted in the army on March 24, 1941 . . . he sailed for Australia January 16, 1942.

JAP FORCE CALLED SMALL

Allied Fliers in Australia
Beat on Raid on Base
On New Guinea

CHUNGKING, May 5.—(P)—Japanese troops invaded China's Yunnan province today after driving up the Burma road and crossing the shallow Wanting river, 670 miles from this capital, a military spokesman said.

Bitter fighting is in progress in the area around the border town of Wanting. Still in Chinese hands, the spokesman reported.

He declared that destruction of the Chinese section of the Burma road, which winds through sheer mountains and gaping gorges, had not yet been necessary but that the Chinese would carry out their scorched earth policy if necessary.

(The Japanese claimed their air force already had carried the war far into Yunnan province with a heavy raid on Yungchang, about 100 miles inside the province where the Burma road crosses the upper reaches of the great Mekong River. A dispatch to the Tokyo newspaper Asahi, indicating that an air base had been established there, said the raiders destroyed nine planes, seven of which were grounded. The dispatch added that the town had been left in flames.)

Thus in little less than two months, the Japanese invaders of Burma had driven 500 miles from Rangoon to China's back door. The great Burma port, which the Japanese have since utilized as its main supply base, fell March 8.

The advance to Wanting represented a 90-mile drive along the Burma supply road from Lashio, the railroad which was wrested from the outnumbered and outgunned Chinese army commanded by United States Lieut. General Joseph W. Stilwell.

The army spokesman described the Japanese force as "small." The Vanguard, however, appeared to pose a distant threat to the Chinese capital of Chungking, some 670 miles away across high mountains and deep gorges.

In the battle for the approaches to Australia, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that Allied warplanes again smashed hard at potential Japanese invasion bases at Lae, New Guinea, and Rabaul, New Britain.

Other Allied airmen beat off a Japanese raid on Port Moresby, United Nations base on New Guinea, damaging five enemy planes out of an attacking force of 19.

In the Philippines, a Tokyo broadcast asserted that Japanese troops had captured Dansalan on Mindanao Island, 600 miles south of Manila, which it described as the capital of the refugee Filipino Government and American military headquarters.

The broadcast said Mindanao was now under Japanese control.

BULLETIN
LONDON, May 5.—(P)—Russian attacks in the Kursk, Kharkov and Tchernogol sectors of the southern front were reported today in circumstances which suggested a major Soviet offensive might have started before the Germans were able to launch one of their own.

(By The Associated Press)
British warplanes heavily bombed the great Skoda Armament Works at Pilsen in Nazi-occupied former Czechoslovakia before dawn today, dropped flares and leaflets over Vichy, capital of unoccupied France and attacked the big war foundries city of Stuttgart in southwest Germany.

Stuttgart (pop. 500,000) is the reported headquarters of the Bosch Electrical Works, the Daimler and Benz airplane engine factories, and other vital military targets.

A German broadcast said that the RAF "attacked" Vichy with incendiary bombs and that French anti-aircraft batteries went into action, but Vichy dispatches said the planes merely dropped propaganda and observation flares.

The raiders also flew over Clermont-Ferrand, 30 miles from Vichy.

Other RAF planes, carrying out a widespread series of night attacks, pounded the docks at Nantes, France, and bombed shipping off the coasts of Holland and Norway.

German night raiders struck back with a 30-plane attack on the English coast, dropping incendiaries and high-explosive bombs on Cowes and Eastbourne.

The British Air Ministry said giant new four-motored Stirlings, capable of carrying eight tons of bombs each, were sent on the long foray against the Skoda Works, in the second attack there in 10 days.

On the Russian war front, Adolf Hitler's field headquarters asserted the Nazis had beaten off attacks by "strong enemy forces" and declared that "several offensive operations by German troops for the improvement of their own positions were carried."

With signs of Hitler's long-awaited grand offensive still missing, German newspapers took a grimmer tone and exhorted German war workers to speed up production for "a last gigantic struggle."

A bulletin from Red Army headquarters said Russian troops "waged offensive battles on several sectors of the front and improved their positions," and dispatches implied that the Soviet armies had seized the initiative to break the muddy spring stalemate.

Defenders of long-besieged Leningrad were pictured as striking savagely at the Germans, a communique reporting that yesterday's assaults left "eleven hundred enemy dead on the field of battle."

COLUMBUS, May 5.—(P)—Gov. John W. Bricker started all over today in his search for an adjutant general.

Bird recently was granted a leave of absence to rejoin the 37th division for active service.

British occupation of French Madagascar, with two-fisted backing by the United States will boost Allied morale no end, not only because we have beaten the Japs to a base of vast strategic importance but because the operation represents the shirt-sleeve initiative which is going to win this war.

In itself it is a notification to dark-visaged, fox-nosed Pierre Laval—not to start kicking the Allied dawg around. Lest there be any misunderstanding in the mind of this Frenchman, Washington has warned him bluntly that any warlike action against the occupying forces at Madagascar will be an act of war against the United Nations.

FRENCH ISLAND IS OCCUPIED BY BRITISH FORCES

Surprise Action Taken with Support of United States To Protect Supply Line in Far Pacific—Japs and Nazis, Beaten to Punch, Howl—Laval Warned by U. S.

By ROGER D. GREENE
(By the Associated Press)

Bitter fighting was reported raging today on the north end of 1,000-mile-long French Madagascar, the world's fourth largest island, as British sea-borne forces attacked toward the Diego Suarez naval base after a surprise landing.

France's 86-year-old Chief of State Petain and Admiral Darlan, anti-British chief of French armed forces, were reported to have sent a message to the commander in chief at Madagascar urging the troops to "resist attack and defend the honor of the French flag."

London military quarters said the British, striking to forestall a threatened Axis attempt to seize the strategic territory, had captured a French battery.

German Reaction
A German broadcast said there had been French casualties and that fighting continued more than 36 hours after British troops landed early yesterday at Courier Bay, 10 miles across the Isthmus from Diego Suarez.

DNB, the German news agency, reported that a French submarine and a tender had been sunk at Madagascar resisting the British landing.

French reservists were said to have been called up, with orders to fight the British.

What About Japan?
There was no immediate indication whether Japanese naval units, the nearest Axis striking force, were en route to dispute the British coup.

A Japanese armada of three battleships, five aircraft carriers, and flotillas of destroyers as well as cruisers was recently reported operating in the Bay of Bengal.

German dispatches said British naval and air forces first appeared off Diego Suarez yesterday and that Gov.-Gen. Armand Annet rejected a seven-hour ultimatum. The British attack then started.

British military quarters said the landing was executed about 3 A. M. British Time (9 P. M. Monday, Eastern War Time.)

The islands, 800 miles off the east coast of South Africa, commands Allied sea lanes to the Middle East, India and China.

Commandos Lead
A British war office communique said the landing force consisted of regular troops and a small contingent of "special service troops"—identified as war-wise Commandos—and met little opposition.

"Our forces have landed at Courier Bay, covered by naval aircraft, with the intention of proceeding across the Isthmus to the naval base at Diego Suarez," the British communique said.

"It is hoped that the French authorities will accept the offer of the United Nations to help in defense of the island against Axis aggression."

U. S. Warns Laval
A Washington statement last night declared the dawn landing was made with "the full approval and support of the government of the United States," and hinted at active American military aid against resistance, announcing:

"Any warlike act permitted by the French government against the government of Great Britain or the government of the United States would, of necessity, have to be regarded by the government of the United States as an attack upon the United Nations as a whole."

The occupation was in line with President Roosevelt's warning April 28 that the United Nations would take whatever measures necessary to prevent the Axis from using Vichy territory as bases.

It demonstrated the hardening of Washington's attitude since Laval's appointment as chief of government on April 14.

Rationing Registration Runs Into Jam in City

LONGER HOURS ARE ARRANGED FOR WEDNESDAY

Patience of People Praised By Registrars and Administrator

Approximately one fourth of the men, women and children in Fayette County today had their first ration certificates — War Ration Book No. 1, it is officially called—but they did not get them without some difficulty and in the city long waiting.

But, officials in charge of the registration said Tuesday as they got ready for the second day that they had learned the task was bigger than they had anticipated and taken steps to remedy the situation.

Nobody apparently, except the county rationing administrator, Ralph R. Penn, fully appreciated what a tremendous task the registration of more than 20,000 persons would be although they had been divided into four sections alphabetically.

In the rural sections of the county and the villages, there was not the crush that nearly swamped the registrars in the city. There are only approximately 10,000 persons in the county and they were spread among the 23 elementary schools, it was explained, while in Washington C. H. there were as many, if not a few more, persons to be registered in only five elementary city schools.

The rationing administrator's check on the first day's work showed that 6,088 persons in all had been registered. Of these, only 2,275 were registered in the city and 3,813 in the rural sections and villages.

The number of those registering on the first day "far exceeded our expectations," Penn declared. Due partly to the urge of people to "get it over with" nearly everyone in the city had to wait, some as long as two hours, to make out their applications. Chairs were arranged in long rows to eliminate the standing. From registrars it was learned that many of the first alphabetical section gave up and went home without registering.

The weary registrars—most of them school teachers who had been on their feet all day—had only the most complimentary things to say about the people. They remarked about their patience and good humor at the long waits and as one expressed it "not a murmur of discontent and everybody took it in stride."

Superintendent A. B. Murray, who had charge of the arrangements for the city, "has kindly consented to start the registration at 1 P. M. instead of 3 P. M. on Wednesday to help relieve the congestion," Penn said Tuesday. The registrars are to remain on the job each of the four registration nights until 10 P. M. Whether the task could be finished in the city by the prearranged closing time Thursday night was conjectural.

Penn explained that "Supt. Murray is doing this (early start Wednesday) to take care of any who were not registered Monday and to take care of those who cannot register Thursday along with those on the regular alphabetical list for Wednesday."

Both the administrator and the registrars emphasized the importance of everyone having the necessary information for registering when they come for their ration books. Much of the delay was caused, they said, because applicants had to hesitate so long in answering questions.

The administrator declined to say what if anything the registration disclosed regarding sugar hoarding. He did, however,

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Hall are announcing the birth of a son, Tuesday morning, at their home on Clinton Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Newton, 902 South North Street, are announcing the birth of a daughter, Sandra Lou, on Sunday, May 3.

Mr. Sam Parrett, who underwent an appendectomy in Mt. Carmel Hospital, Columbus, Monday, is making very satisfactory recovery.

Mrs. David Binegar, of near New Martinsburg, was removed to Mt. Carmel Hospital, Monday evening, for observation and treatment, making the trip in the Klever ambulance.

Private Donald Leeth, son of Mrs. Daisy Leeth, has been transferred from Patterson Field, Dayton, to the 44th Air Depot, Air Service Command, Fairgrounds, Springfield, Illinois.

Mrs. Milton Dodds and Mrs. Ted Morris arrived at their homes here Monday afternoon, after having sent several months with their husbands, who are stationed with Company M in New Orleans.

Reeder West, son of Mrs. Betty West, has arrived in Panama, so a cable to his mother relates. He will be stationed in the Air Depot there. He has been assistant to Mr. Homer Morgan in the personnel department of Wright Field, Dayton.

say that only 5,809 ration books were issued to the 6,088 who registered. Ration books cannot be issued to persons who have more than two pounds per person in their homes.

Penn was lavish in his appreciation of the help given the registrars by volunteers during that first hectic day of rationing registration. In many cases they were taken from the lines of those waiting. Of the teachers, he said simply: "They did a wonderful job." Many of the teachers, he said, "went right straight through from 3 o'clock without even stopping to eat."

WAR IN FAR PACIFIC CALLED NO SIDESHOW

Australian Official Warns Against Minimizing It

LONDON, May 5.—(AP)—Herbert V. Evatt, Australian attorney general and minister for external affairs, criticized today what he called a catch-cry widely employed by some people—that "we must conquer Hitler first."

"Those who employ it," he said in an interview, "seem incapable of understanding this is a world war."

He said his mission here was related to his "not letting anybody forget the Pacific War is not a sideshow."

He lashed out against what he called "the complacent assumption" that it was unlikely Japan would not strike simultaneously against Australia and India.

RED CROSS HOME NURSING WORK IS OUTSTANDING

Many Enrolled in Series of Classes Taught in This City

A large number of persons are taking the special training in Red Cross Home nursing classes, which were organized a short time ago, and which meet at the home of Mrs. Marguerite Powell. The instructors are registered graduate nurses of Fayette County, authorized by the American Red Cross, all of whom are working on a volunteer basis.

A complete course consists of 24 hours, with two hours being given each week until the course is completed. Equipment for the room in which the classes assemble has been furnished by the Dale Furniture Store, the Klever Funeral Home, local Red Cross Chapter and the registered nurses.

The purpose of the Red Cross home nursing is to strengthen the resourcefulness of the individual homemaker, and to help her take better care of her home and family under normal conditions as well as in cases of illness or emergency.

It is pointed out that with scores of persons trained in Red Cross home nursing, they would be of great assistance in case of emergency, due to war or other reason.

The course in Red Cross home nursing covers such subjects as: Individual health and personal hygiene.

Healthful home environment—the care of the home-normal family life.

Home care of the sick—care of the chronic and the aged—minor illnesses and emergencies.

Care of mothers, babies and small children, in health and in illness.

Community health-prevention and control of communicable disease.

William Gamel of the local Board of Health has given a lecture on sanitation and bacteria before the classes.

The instructors are: Mrs. Ella D. Kinne, Miss Elizabeth Rowland, Mrs. Medrith Mitchell, Mrs. Fred Foster — (class at Bloomingburg) Mrs. Clare Louise Boren.

Mrs. Clare Louise Boren, Washington Avenue, is the local chairman of Red Cross Home Nursing.

STILL WORKING ON SCOUT DRIVE

Half of Reports Disclose More Than Half of Fund Raised

The campaign for $1200 for Boy Scout activities in the Fayette area is still under way, and Chairman F. E. Hill said Tuesday that definite plans had been made to close the campaign by Friday evening.

Hill said Tuesday that with half of the captains reporting, more than half of the desired total had been reached, and if the work continues as it has been going, the goal should be reached by Friday evening.

All captains are under instructions to file their complete reports by Friday evening.

Delay has been occasioned by inability of many of the workers to contact those whose names were on their list, at the first or even the second visit, it is pointed out.

to try to whip the French republic up to the point of hostilities against Britain.

However, they are strong for the United States and are well aware that their fate is wrapped up in the Allied cause. The French people on the whole are with the Allies.

The occupation of the Island of Madagascar is the equivalent of a major military victory. The Japs apparently were about to occupy it themselves and had they done so they would have secured virtual control of the whole Indian Ocean.

With Madagascar safely tucked away, the question will arise whether the Allies now will go further and take over the great French base of Dakar, on the west coast of Africa. This port dominates the Atlantic shipping routes over a great area and the Germans long have had an eye on occupying it.

REDS RUN WILD AGAINST GIANTS TO WIN, 15 TO 4

Indian's Lead in American League Race Cut When Red Sox Win

By JUDSON BAILEY
(By The Associated Press)

Big innings are one of the commonest occurrences in baseball and a well known "sucker bet" is that the winning team in any game will score more runs in one frame than the losing team will in the entire game.

However, not many innings will compare with the frantic fourth at Cincinnati yesterday when the Reds tallied 12 times against the New York Giants to come within two runs of the modern major league record.

Up till this explosion the puny Reds had not made a hit off Bill McGee who was trailing 1-0 because a homer by Willard Marshall in the second inning. They made only six hits in the big blow-up, too, but they scored nine runs before the Giants got a man out, everybody in the batting order came to the plate twice and they still had the bases loaded at the finish.

Everything Happens

Everything happened, including a triple by Eddie Joost with the bases jammed, three vital errors and four walks. Three runs were forced in by passes and another a hit batsman.

After McGee and Hugh East were unable to retire any of the Reds, Harry Feldman was sent to the scene and even though he proved little if any better than his situation and left him on the mound until the end.

This came eventually in the form of a 15-4 score and 35-year-old Rookie Ray Starr's second victory. He allowed eight hits.

In the only other National League game the Pittsburgh Pirates pulled within a half game of the pace-setting Brooklyn Dodgers by nailing out the Boston, 2-1, in a pitching duel between Bob Klinger and Jim Tobin, each of whom permitted six hits.

Indian Lead Cut

Cleveland's lead in the American League was shortened to one game as the Boston Red Sox took their second straight decision from the Indians, 11-8.

The New York Yankees crushed the Chicago White Sox again, 6-1, bunching five runs in a big third inning and keeping the Chicago White Sox shut out till the ninth, when an error by Phil Rizzuto after two were out opened up a scoring chance.

The Detroit Tigers maintained their hold on second place by whipping the Philadelphia Athletics, 6-4, with a 12-hit attack.

The St. Louis at Washington game was postponed.

NEW YORK, May 5—Baseball received its "green light," similar go-ahead signals have been given to other sports—such as yachting, for instance—and now Jack Joyner, the University of Tennessee sports publicist, suggests that intercollegiate sports should be granted some sign of official approval. . . That might help the gate receipts a bit, but from here it hardly seems necessary. . . The Army and Navy have given college athletes their okay by grabbing up so many of them for such jobs as flying fighter planes.

Monday Best Day For Baseball in Cleveland, Claim

CLEVELAND, May 5—(P)—Clevelanders prefer Monday to Saturday for baseball, and that is why the Indians will play their Army and Navy relief fund game at the beginning of the week.

When the service fund games in the Major Leagues were announced this week, most of the contests were set for Saturdays, but the league-leading Redskins scheduled May 25, a Monday, for their battle here with the Chicago Pale Hose.

"Our figures show that Monday games in 1940 outdrew Saturday contests by better than 3,000 persons," Dan Taylor, publicity director for the tribe, said last night. "Last year the average Monday attendance was greater by more than 100 fans."

Both teams and the league will contribute their shares of the game's receipts to the service fund.

Bass Fishing Comes To End Here; Won't Be Resumed Until June 16

Bass fishermen here have put away their rods and reels, flies and plugs and spinners as they said, in effect: "well, it was great sport while it lasted."

The open season on black, large mouth, small mouth and spotted bass came to a close on May 1 and will remain closed until June 16 throughout the inland fishing district of Ohio.

This has been a good bass fishing spring as evidenced by the number of size of fish caught in Fayette County's streams. Nearly all of the dyed-in-the-wool bass fishermen here have their favorite "holes" and guard their location as a miser might guard a hoard of gold. They have no great hesitancy in naming the stream but when it comes to getting specific, that is a different matter.

Compton creek, one of the smallest streams in the county, probably ranks as the favorite. Sugar creek probably comes next. Although Rattlesnake and Paint creeks are not passed up by the fishermen reports of big catches in them are not one-two-three with the other creeks although they are much smaller.

Fishermen say their sport has been immensely improved during the past few years by the "planting" of thousands of many different kinds of fish of all sizes by the state conservation department. They are looking forward to more good fishing when the ban is lifted next month.

The closed season is enforced to permit bass opportunity to spawn. The open season on black bass in the Lake Erie fishing district will close on May 25 to remain closed until July 1. The ban on black bass does not apply to white and rock bass which are different species.

Fish management men report bass in streams are nesting and water and weather conditions indicate an excellent bass hatch this year.

Poor Man's Badminton

Serves Same Purpose as Real Thing—Game Invented by Texas A. & M. Students and Low Cost Makes It Popular

(Wide World News Service)
COLLEGE STATION, Tex.—They call it Aggiebinton. Even the most financially embarrassed can play it. The cost is under 10 cents a person and it serves the purpose for badminton lovers—so that's why the game is popular with Texas A. and M. College students.

Carlton (Spike) White, physical education instructor, originated the sport. The name just naturally had to be Aggiebinton.

Strictly Home-Made

The Aggies found the total cost of rackets and shuttlecocks might be beyond their pocketbooks but to play Aggiebinton all they needed to buy was a badminton or volleyball net—or they could even use a substitute for that.

How about the racket?

All you need is a 9x6-inch piece of three-eighths inch plywood or composition such as common wallboard. Saw out a paddle, whittle two pieces of white pine scrap and glue or attach them to the paddle to form a grip handle.

The shuttlecock?

Ask your grocer for an empty onion, orange or grapefruit sack. From that wide-webbed material cut a one-foot square. Take a big handful of scrap cotton and compress it with the hands into a ball two inches in diameter. Pull the corners of the square about the cotton ball and twist it to further compress the mass.

Everything But Bounce

Next, take a strip of one-half inch adhesive tape and wrap that around the twist in the "bird"—that's what they call it in Aggiebinton. Take more tape and run it from the first strip at right angles along the bird and back to the other side. This gives support at the half-way section, so do it again to divide it into quarters.

Finally, fray out the corners of the sacking above the twist. That gives it a flutter in the air and control of flight.

The game is played on a volleyball court, so all that remains of badminton are the rules which closely follow those of tennis as to service and return of the ball, except there is no bounce to the bird in Aggiebinton.

Warime Tips on How You Can Conserve on Your Car

By Courtesy Ford Motor Company

COOLING SYSTEM

With the war emergency bringing a new need for conservation, it is important to check the cooling system of your car. Troubles originating in a faulty cooling system can lead to the necessity for extensive repairs.

The cooling system should be thoroughly cleaned twice a year—in the Spring when anti-freeze is drained out and in the Fall when anti-freeze is added. Any obstruction in the water passages may cause overheating and serious damage to the engine. For best results, an anti-freeze containing a rust inhibitor should be used. In warm weather use a Summer rust preventive with each fresh filling of water.

The water in the cooling system must be as nearly neutral as possible. In sections of the country where only alkaline, acid or saline water is available there is extreme danger of corrosion. Many drivers in these areas use waste water from ice boxes, because this water has been purified in the process of freezing.

The level of the liquid in the radiator should be checked regularly. Add water if the level seems low after the engine is thoroughly warmed up.

We Stand Squarely for the Best Interest of the Citizens of Washington C. H. and Fayette County.

TO OUR GRADUATES

Soon the high school seniors in Washington C. H. and of the rural and village schools in Fayette County will receive the diplomas which will be evidence that they have closed the early period of their supervised education and are ending what probably has been one of the happiest eras of their lives.

The graduates this year will be unique as compared to other outgoing classes of recent years in that they will be in the first groups ending their public high school careers since the United States has taken up arms to fight for preservation of "our way of life."

To these young graduates there is attached a greater responsibility than to their predecessors for more than a score of years. They will be thrown into a world at a time when they are urgently needed in the scheme of things—to give their best efforts to aid their countrymen in protecting our nation and our national life. This war has created a very serious condition. They will have to help solve the problems that are arising like a fog to confuse and distort our vision and to alarm our souls.

Many of the graduates from the county schools will stay on the farm, others from both city and county will go forth to fill office or factory jobs. Both posts are of the highest importance with but little to choose between them from that standpoint.

To the ones who will raise the food which will be fed to soldiers and sailors—maybe you do not know it, but food sustenance is one of the most important matters of the military success. Vast systems of transportation and many men at and just behind the front are required just to feed the fighters. The old but hackneyed statement: "An army travels on its stomach," not only is true but is vital to the military force of today. If the army and navy goes to the trouble to enlist the services of the best cooks and chefs possible to prepare the food, it goes without saying that the raiser of the food should stand shoulder to shoulder with the soldier in giving him the best which can be produced. We already know that you graduates are willing and ready to do anything you can to aid. This is written with that in mind but with an effort to suggest to you that farming is one of the most essential of all war industries. Congratulations on your near graduation and may we again congratulate you when the war is over for the yeoman work you have done.

First the boys from the country come to the city, to work in factories. Then there isn't enough help to plant, cultivate

3. What large American city holds no popular election for municipal officers?

Words of Wisdom

Philosophy can add to our happiness in no other manner but by diminishing our misery; it should not pretend to increase our present stock, but make us economists of what we are possessed of. Happy were we all born philosophers, all born with a talent of thus dissipating our own cares by spreading them upon all mankind.—Goldsmith.

Hints on Etiquette

Go easy on the perfume. It is nice to smell a delicate odor on a lovely woman, but not to be practically knocked over by an overpowering scent. The first is consideration for others—or good manners—the latter poor taste.

Today's Horoscope

Elderly relatives, home affairs, business or profession loom large on the horizon of the persons having birthdays today. They promise substantial gain and advancement in the year to come. This is a most important and generally propitious year for them. They are very imaginative folk, they plan many things but often fail to carry them out. They have charming manners which attract people to them. The child who is born on this date will be very ambitious, aiming at and attaining great things in life through its own patient endeavors, and the valuable aid of friends and relatives. Some deception is threatened, however.

Washington at a Glance

By Charles P. Stewart

Gloomy forebodings as to the future, rather than grim determination, are sensed by international diagnosticians as responsible for Japan's suggestion of the possibility of warfare's continuation throughout another century or more.

Nippon goes into a conflict with lots of pep but its staying qualities aren't very good, probably because its scanty resources play out pretty fast and it realizes that it's got to win in its time or presently be licked flatter than a pancake.

The military crowd's completely reckless. Starting a fight's an almost overpowering urge with 'em, and, once in it, they positively insist on dying, in preference to defeat. The average Jap, though, likes to go on living as long as he can. And there are millions more average Japs than there are Jap militarists. The civil government (what we call the administration here) represents mainly the average, and perhaps would do it as per popular desire, if it could. The trouble is, however, that the militarists are at the governmental top in Japan. What they say goes—maybe not theoretically but in fact.

Accordingly, when they decreed war, in the whole country went. All availables were conscripted. Economics and industry were militarized. All national life was made over on the jump.

Off to Fast Start
Well, the militarists are efficient ent in their way. They were formidably equipped for the juncture and caught the United Nations off base in Hawaii, the Philippines, the Dutch East Indies and Australasia, scored tellingly in that area and doubtless stirred up plenty of enthusiasm off their cause. Yet it may be beginning to cool as their home archipelago starts to feel the pinch at the waistline.

The surmise is that the government's trying to pacify 'em—to assure them that the affair's due to come out satisfactorily ultimately even if it takes 100 years.

The original version was that the issue would be decided in a matter of months. Now a century's mentioned. "Let's keep it up until the year 2042 and we'll still dominate the world." Whether or not it'll convince 'em, I'm waiting to see.

The appeal was an official radio broadcast from Tokyo, anyway.

We've heard lately a deal about peace offensives, impending from the Axis powers. We're expected to look for 'em as offensives on the Axis's own terms. This Jap offering certainly isn't one of them—a peace to be deferred for 100 years, and then on the Japs' terms.

Nevertheless, German and Italian peace offers are beginning

Italy's Hands Tied

Of course, it would be nice to have Italy rebel, but what's the chance?—ask all observers. That France, the Low Countries, the Balkans and the Scandinavians will tear loose at the first opportunity goes without saying. Turkey's sympathetic. The three real proletariats are Fuehrer Hitler, Duce Mussolini and Caudillo Franco of Spain, and they seem to be on the run.

How Germany will come out is problematic. It's had its traditions of democracy. The last war put 'em on the Fritz.

Japan, obviously, won't last long, after Germany and Italy are liquidated.

It won't string out for 100 years. That's a cinch.

Hair a Kind of Organ and Has Various Functions

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

NOT LONG ago in this column I mentioned that there had been a report of the discovery of a new vitamin which would prevent the graying of hair. I said that I had seen some of the experiments with this vitamin in a biology laboratory.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

tory on gray rats. I also said, most emphatically, that I did not believe its use in human beings would be attended with success, that I did not believe that it would prevent the graying of hair nor restore gray hair to its original color, and did not advise anybody to experiment with it until further investigation had been made.

Just to show how impressive such statements in the press are, there has not been a day gone by since then, but that someone has written me, asking me where they can obtain the vitamin which I recommend to prevent the graying of hair. This is a little discouraging to a publicist, so I repeat the statement.

Hair Has Purposes

But I am encouraged and very much interested by a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association from Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, one of the most eminent ethnologists in the world. Ethnologists, as you know, have a good deal to do with hair and therefore Dr. Hrdlicka's discussion comes with authority.

Just what is hair and what are its functions? It will not do to answer this by saying that hair is an appendage of the skin and serves for a protection of the body. It does that, but that is not the whole story.

Hair is really a kind of organ serving a number of purposes besides mere passive protection. It increases the sensitivity of the skin. It has esthetic and mating significance and particularly, so far as this discussion is concerned, through its pigment it is an important means of elimination of certain by-products of nutrition.

Contains Melanin

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS IN OHIO DECREASE

COLUMBUS, May 5.—(AP)—A decrease in traffic deaths on Ohio highways during the first three months of 1942 was seen today as evidence that motorists are complying willingly with official requests that speeds be reduced during the war.

Hal G. Sours, state highway director, said that the spirit of cooperation was producing in Ohio results as favorable as those obtained by legislation in other states.

The decrease in deaths outside of municipalities was 15.9 percent under the same period a year ago, Sours said, even though total traffic increased 7 1/2 percent.

President Roosevelt and Gov. John W. Bricker have requested a maximum highway speed of 40 miles an hour.

SYNOPSIS

Three young airline hostesses, TIBBY LANE, sweet and natural; STEENA WINTERS, beautiful and sophisticated; and MARG BAKER, plain, sturdy and direct, share an apartment together in New York, where they are based. A friend of Tibby's, TOMMY DARE, is spending his first year out of medical school at a clinic in Brooklyn. Steena sets her cap for WAYNE COURTRIGHT, wealthy official of the airline.

YESTERDAY, Tommy and Courtright both visit Tibby on the same evening, and each appears ready to outwait the other.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

THE EVENING, with Tommy and Wayne Courtright both calling on Tibby, did indeed turn out to be a long and exceedingly painful one, but not for the reason that Tibby had feared—that they would try to out-stay one another.

As it turned out, that did not prove possible, as Courtright was forced to leave unexpectedly for a reason so unpredictable that Tibby well might have regretted its being the cause.

When all attempts at the polite amenities sputtered out, Tibby gave up trying to make small talk. Instead, she turned on the radio. There was one of her favorite comedy teams on the air, so laugh-provoking that surely they would help break the tension—for there was no denying that the room was filled with a sort of tension by now. The two men had not taken to one another. Maybe because they were so different, Tibby decided. Tommy was so boyish and blunt, acting so suspiciously of the other man's presence; Courtright so suave and polished—and apparently so indifferent to Tommy's existence.

The comedy team did not seem as amusing tonight as usual, maybe because it is next to impossible always to maintain the same high level of entertainment—or maybe because Tibby's guests were not in a receptive mood. She was wondering, rather desperately, what she might try next when the program was interrupted by an important news flash.

An airliner had been forced down in the Great Lakes region. Its radio had reported engine trouble, that a forced landing would be attempted, but nothing had been heard from the big ship since. It was feared that there might have been serious trouble, especially as the pilot might have had to set the plane down on a lake which, although frozen in places, probably would not be strong enough to hold such weight until help could arrive.

To Tommy this was not such an out-of-the-ordinary or upsetting news flash. He would have said that was his reason for objecting to Tibby's position as stewardess; such accidents, although not frequent, were bound to occur every now and then. They justified his viewpoint.

But to Tibby and Wayne Courtright this unexpected bulletin came as a personal shock, to Courtright because the ship that was in trouble belonged to the airline of which he was an official; to Tibby because Marg was on that particular flight.

"I'm afraid I'll have to go," Wayne said, his gray eyes turning to steel, but showing, nevertheless, that he was deeply perturbed. He knew how such an accident, even though it should prove slight, destroyed confidence in the company.

Tibby said, "My other roommate—the one I told you about—Marg Baker—she's on that ship." She had not questioned his having to leave so abruptly. She did not feel any relief at his going now. Her heart had contracted with fear; all her thoughts were with Marg.

"I'll let you know the minute I hear anything," Courtright said. "It may not be as bad as it sounds." You must try not to worry. In spite of his calm manner, it was evident that he was worried, too.

Not in the way Tibby was about Marg. "Oh, please do!" she followed him to the door, her face white now, drained of all color. "I shall wait in. Phone whenever—or whatever you hear, at no matter what hour. I shan't be asleep." Of course she could not attempt sleep until her fears were abated.

"Till phone tonight," Wayne Courtright said. It was a solemn promise; he looked into her eyes as he made it, holding her hand in parting a moment, too. It was as though he were trying to add reassurance, and give her some of his strength, should she need it.

At least so Tibby felt, feeling at the same time her panic subside a little. As he had said, it might not be nearly so bad as it had sounded over the radio, coming as such a shock, put so briefly. Tibby must hope for the best. The pilot would land his ship, even if he had to land it on the thin ice of a lake. Such feats had been achieved before; a forced landing did not necessarily mean an accident.

Apparently Tommy still had not got what this all was about. Why should it have caused such an abrupt leave-taking on Courtright's part—with that goodby scene he had staged at the door? Tommy did not see why it had been necessary for him to hold Tibby's hand so long. Or why she should sit up all night waiting for him to phone.

"I don't get it," he said, as Tibby came back into the room. Her face was so white that Tommy jumped up to pull up a chair for her. "Why should he—that Courtright fellow—rush out of here as if the place were on fire? How can you be sure that Marg is on that particular plane?"

"Mr. Courtright is one of the heads of the company," Tibby explained to him now, if somewhat belatedly. "I know Marg is on it. Captain Mercer is the chief pilot. She always flies with him."

"One of the heads, eh?" That did not explain everything, even yet, to Tommy. Why should one of the company heads have been calling on Tib? She was only a humble—and rather new—employee. "Y'g' might have been on it," Tommy said. To him this was the important issue. It ought to show Tibby why he thought she ought to be willing to sit at home and wait for a man, even though he had told her to forget he ever had said that.

She said, "But I'm not, Marg is." To Tibby that was the only thing that mattered. If anything happened to Marg, dear, plucky, loyal friend . . . but she had promised Wayne she would not worry, that she would hope for the best.

"No use your sitting here stewing," Tommy was in agreement with Courtright when it came to this. He hated to see Tibby so distressed. "Why don't we go some place—a show or to get a soda—anywhere to put in some time?"

"You forget I promised to wait," Tibby's dark eyes reproached him. "Until I get a phone call, I mean."

"I didn't forget. There may not be any more news for hours. You can't just sit by the phone all night."

"I shan't leave until I do hear something more," Tibby's tone was firm. She looked as if even a fire could not have budged her.

Tommy said, "I've told you all along you ought not to be mixed up in this flying business." He did not mean to scold at a time like this, with Tibby so concerned, but he could not allow such an opportunity to slip by without reminding her he had been right all along.

She made a little weary gesture with one hand. "Please—let's not bring that up now." A little tact—and polish—would not hurt Tommy, she thought. He did not seem to realize how she felt about Marg. Courtright had, although he did not even know her.

"Okay, okay . . ." Tommy had been trying to help. He guessed all he could do was stick around, too, until a phone call came, even if Tibby did not seem to want him, now that her other gentleman friend had departed—was that "lucky" a friend of hers?—and after the welcome she had extended at first.

He was still sticking. Tibby was still waiting for the phone to ring, when Steena came home. She had not heard the news flash, but she had seen the headlines of an extra. She was nearly as anxious as Tibby about Marg, so that, at first, she did not think anything of it when Tibby remarked that Courtright had promised to phone as soon as there was any further news.

"Wayne—was he here? Too bad I missed him." Steena took it for granted he had called to see her, so she did not think it strange that Tibby should be waiting for a call from him. Besides, Tibby's doctor was there. The three of them would wait together.

Woody Herman Eats Regular These Days

By RAY PEACOCK

(Wide World News Service)

NEW YORK—Woody Herman stuck by the blues through red ink and days when he couldn't buy any ink at all—and today the blues are making everything rosy for the Milwaukee boy whose dance orchestra is turning the popularity polls upside down.

Three years ago the band was hungry and on the verge of breaking up. Swing was king. It was like being a Democrat in Maine. And then—but let Woody tell it.

"We started out five years ago," he says. "Isham Jones decided to quit and a group of us playing for him formed our own unit. We immediately featured the blues, which was the most uncommercial thing we could have done because swing was all the rage."

Hit The Road
"We went into a New York ballroom, played there for seven months and thought we were doing pretty well. Then we hit the road and found we weren't so hot after all. For two years we weren't working often enough to eat more than once in a while."

"Sometimes we felt there was no use going on, because we could get jobs with other bands. But a turning point came when we played at the Famous Door, in New York. That got the trade talking about us, and the public could hear us. Along about this time we recorded 'Woodchopper's Ball,' and that helped, too."

"Our rise has been gradual. Everything came the hard way. Our recording of 'Blues In The Night' did a lot. It has sold over 400,000 copies so far."

Solid Music

Such is the modest version of Woodrow Wilson Herman, one-time whiz in English literature at Marquette University. But there is more to the story. Woody is a hard worker. He plays a hot clarinet, ditto alto sax, and sings the blues in agreeable baritone—solo or with his chorus. His music is solid.

with an intelligent change of pace.

There is, too, an all-for-one feeling in the band. Six of the original Isham Jones musicians remain in the personnel of 17. And it isn't all Herman. You hear plenty about Frankie Carson, the drummer; Tommy Linehan, pianist; Carolyn Grey, vocalist from San Francisco; Neal Read, trombonist; and Billie Rogers, a girl trumpet player from Missoula Mont. "She plays like a man," says Woody.

Busy Maestro
Right now, Woody is featured in the Terrace Room of the Hotel New Yorker, along with the ice show headlined by Adelaide Inge.

Unaffected despite years in vaudeville as a child genius instrumentalist, the slender, dark-haired Woody is a couple of years under 30. Prosperity (comparative, at least) has given him no bulge at the waistline, and he is right at home with the thousands of white collar workers who live in Jackson Heights apartment houses.

In the true Jackson Heights tradition, Mr. and Mrs. Herman have a baby buggy occupied by seven-month-old Ingrid, who gets her red hair from her handsome mother. She is, it seems, a remarkable child. Already, she sings.

"Trouble's An Ounce—

—or Trouble's A Ton"

When it comes to the family's weekly washing. It is a ton of trouble when the housewife attempts to do it herself or even with the help of a maid and gadgets never really help much. It is fuss and bother and it is hard work no matter how it is done, with time taken from other important activities.

When the true cost is counted—the time, supplies, hot water, electricity, investment and depreciation of household equipment—there is nothing saved.

So why not make washday an ounce instead of a ton by sending everything to the professional laundry? Just pack up your troubles in a laundry bag and be smiling fresh and happy when the day is over, instead of wash-weary and worn.

Charlene Kising Is April Bride Of Charles Conner

Coming as a complete surprise to their many friends, is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Charlene Kising, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Kising, to Mr. Charles R. Conner, son of Mr. Frank Conner, of Wilmington, on April 30, at Columbus. The single ring ceremony was performed by Justice Howard G. Lynn in the presence of Miss Violet Irene Kising, sister of the bride.

Mrs. Conner was a graduate of Washington High School in the class of 1937 and is now employed by the Curtis-Wright Corporation, Columbus.

Mr. Conner graduated from Wilmington High School and is now boatswain mate, second class, in the U. S. Navy. He left Saturday for Norfolk, Va., stopping enroute at Portsmouth to join some recruits which he was to accompany to Norfolk.

The British declared bluntly the coup was executed to prevent Japanese seizure of Madagascar, now that France's pro-Axis Premier Pierre Laval directs the Vichy regime. Japs Beaten . . . How! A Tokyo broadcast commented angrily: "The Madagascar occupation is a direct aggression against Vichy . . . and is bound to result in a further cooling of Vichy's relations with the United Nations and bring closer cooperation between Berlin and Italy." The broadcast quoted "competent quarters" as asserting that "the latest action by the United Nations was made in an attempt to advertise the fact that the Allies are opening a second front, which, however, they will be unable to carry out because the Allies lack men, shipping bottoms and materials." No Allied Seizure Both Washington and London announcements made it clear that the occupation would not intentionally interfere with the French status of Madagascar and that the island would be "held in trust for France" against threatened Axis aggression. British Commandos led the landing on the small, mangrove-bordered shore of Courier Bay, 10 miles across from the big Diego Suarez naval base, where the French cruisers Moncalm and Marseillaise and the submarine tender Jules Verne were reported to have arrived four days ago. A Japanese military mission was said to have been conferred recently with French authorities on the island, and Free French followers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle were being rounded up and thrown into prison. London diplomatic quarters hailed the coup as having "greatly improved" the Allies' position in the Indian Ocean, already brightened by the reported presence of the mighty new U. S. battleships Washington and North Carolina in those waters. These quarters said the attack signalled an end of Allied attempts to coax Vichy away from German influence. Circumstances suggested that the British beat Japan to the punch by a narrow margin, with Japanese Admirals Nomura and Abe recently active in Vichy amid indications that "yet further concessions by the Vichy government to the Axis and, in particular, to Japan" were imminent. INTERNAL REVOLT FACED BY HITLER AS GENERALS GIVE HIM BLUNT WARNING (Continued from Page One) recognize his weakness and was seeking compromises. Von Brauchitsch was one of the strongest opponents of Hitler's plan for holding the forward positions in Russia through the winter and counselled a fall back from Moscow long before Hitler agreed. Von Brauchitsch was said to have the confidence and backing of many important military leaders. All were reported distrustful of Hitler's "intuition" generalship and his extension of greater powers to the Gestapo, with which the army frequently has clashed. There was no hint in the information reaching London whether the von Brauchitsch clique threatened Hitler with dis-

The trading pace was slow and milling demand had virtually dried up. Soybeans showed independent strength, advancing at times as much as 1 1/2 cents. Sentiment seemed to favor awaiting some definite news which might furnish an incentive for trading. In a modest rally just before the close, wheat and corn futures advanced to the best levels of the day and closed at or near the peak prices. The informant added he believed the dissident generals might want to turn the campaign elsewhere, rather than to Russia, and to halt offensive warfare and seek to hold Germany's gains by defensive fighting. The clique might even strive by the removal of Hitlerism—to gain a negotiated peace favorable to Germany, the source said. The informant said there had been hints of some kind of German political friction involving Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering.

800 Retailers To Hold Price Ceiling Meeting Here

REPRESENTATIVE OF OPA COMING TO CONFERENCE

Merchants from Five Cities To Gather at Memorial Hall Friday Night

A meeting of an estimated 800 retail merchants and other business men affected by the new government price ceilings has been called by the Office of Price Administration to be held in Washington C. H. on Friday evening, May 8, at the GAR Hall in Memorial Hall.

The meeting is to be attended by retail merchants of Xenia, Wilmington, Greenfield and Hillsboro in addition to the business men from this city.

It is announced that officials of the U. S. government Office of Price Administration will be present to explain the general plan, purpose and details of the new government overall price ceiling and it is expected that merchants present will be permitted to ask questions which the visiting speakers will endeavor to answer to make clear various points in the new regulations which they may not thoroughly understand.

City Manager Edwin Ducey late Monday received a telegram from James A. Davis, of the regional OPA office in Cleveland announcing the meeting scheduled here, asking him to preside, and requesting that details of arrangements be worked out at once.

After Ducey conferred with the executive committee of the Civilian Defense Council, the place for the meeting was arranged and on Tuesday, the city manager left to visit each of the other cities in this district to obtain full cooperation and attendance from officials and merchants of those cities named by the OPA which are to send their delegations of retail merchants.

This meeting scheduled for Friday evening here, is one of 39 such meetings being held in Ohio to acquaint retailers with details of the price ceiling regulations which go into effect on May 18. The meetings begin Wednesday of this week and continue at various cities until May 12.

Plans have been made here to cut off all parking places on East Court Street between the intersections with Fayette and North Streets. The parking places in this block will be made available for out of the city visitors who attend this meeting and whose motor cars will be designated by an OPA sticker on the windshields.

Announcements and cooperation is sought from all chambers of commerce and luncheon clubs regarding this meeting, in all the cities involved in the OPA call.

Best Letter-Editorial By Miss Irene Tobin

"Americans, wake up! We are at war! Do you understand? This means you, every American everywhere."

That was the challenge hurled at her fellow countrymen by Miss Irene Tobin in her letter-editorial which was awarded first prize in the contest conducted by the Columbus Citizen.

Miss Tobin was given a $100 War Bond as the top award of the contest which was open to Ohioans. Hundreds of letter-editorials have just been published in the Citizen. Here is the one written by Miss Tobin:

By IRENE TOBIN

Americans, wake up! We are at war! Do you understand? This means you, every American everywhere!

We are facing the most critical period in our history. What are you doing in the crisis?

We are going to remain a free people or we are going to be the slaves of despots.—What are you doing about it?

Our boys are fighting with the courage of conquerors. Are you remembering that courage alone is not enough?

One woman said: "I'm downright peeved at the war!" She'll be fortunate if she's not more than just peeved before it's over.

FROST OCCURS OVER THIS PART OF OHIO

Frost, ranging from light to fairly heavy, was reported over this area Tuesday morning, but so far as known no extensive damage was caused.

The dry condition of the soil and the fact that the moon was shining part of the time, aided in holding damage to a minimum.

APPRECIATION LETTER IS SENT TO REV. WILSON

Ministerial Association Expresses Regret Over Pastor's Retirement

The Fayette County Ministerial Association, through its secretary, Rev. John Glenn of Bloomingburg, has given expression of its appreciation "of the life and influence" of Rev. W. H. Wilson, who recently retired as pastor of the First Baptist Church here, in a letter just now made public. Dispatch of the letter was authorized unanimously in a resolution approved at the association's last meeting.

The letter said "it is with profound regret that we have learned of your retirement" and then went on to say that "we are delighted to know that Washington C. H., where you have spent so many years of fruitful ministry, will still be blessed by your presence."

Rev. Wilson announced his resignation to the church on January 23 after having served as its pastor for 18 years.

The Ministerial Association's letter of appreciation follows in full:

"Your brethren of the Fayette County Ministerial Association wish you to know that it is with profound regret that we have learned of your retirement from the active pastorate, and deem this an appropriate occasion for the expression of our deep and sincere appreciation of your helpful presence in our Association during the years of your ministry at Washington C. H.

MORE MEN NEEDED IN GUARD COMPANY

Annual Camp This Year To Be in Late July

Captain W. B. Hyer is looking forward for several additional men for the Special Weapons Company of the Ohio State Guard, of which he is the commander.

During June, 23 of the enlistments in the company will expire, and additional men will be needed to fill the ranks due to some not reenlisting.

Plans are already under way for the company to take part in the week of camp activities at Camp Perry.

The week in camp is one of the annual high-lights of guard service.

By reason of the fact that the company here is a special weapons company, much attention is centering on the outfit.

PENNSYLVANIA CREW IS BUSY AT THIS POINT

Extensive Repairs Being Made on Station and Other Property

Several camp cars of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company are parked in the yards here near the plant of The Dayton Power and Light Company and will remain here several weeks, while extensive improvements on Pennsylvania property are being made in and near Washington C. H.

One of the first jobs will be rebuilding the platform of the freight station here, making repairs on the building proper, painting it outside and inside the office, and installing new toilet facilities.

The crew of 15 men will also repair certain bridges in and near Washington C. H. and make changes in the water tank equipment here.

Whether the improvements launched are indicative of the U. S. Army camp being located in Pickaway and Ross counties is not known.

The inspection of the road by high officials Tuesday coupled with the improvements being made and the fact that large numbers of ties have been spotted along the road here and east of Washington C. H. is taken to indicate that better days are looming for the Pennsylvania in the not too distant future.

Room Arrangements Key to SMART INTERIORS!

Rooms can be both smart and livable.

Room arrangements are pretty much a matter of symmetry. There are certain laws of balance which are essential in arranging furnishings in a room to provide that interesting simplicity which is immediately noticeable and admired. Pairs of things make pleasing room arrangements — a pair of chairs, a pair of lamps, a pair of end tables, a pair of throw rugs, a pair of nicknacks.

Arranging furniture is a whole lot more like painting a picture. All you have to start with is a bare room and furnishings. What you do with them is what counts.

Stand just outside of the room studying it carefully. Note its size, its shape and particularly its peculiarities as to size, shape and location of windows, doors, the fire place, recesses in walls, kind of floors, woodwork, etc. Build a composition around interesting things. Make the various individual arrangements in the room balance with the arrangement as a whole.

If all of the heavy pieces are at one side or at one end of the room, the balance is destroyed. Remember, windows are to look out of, particularly if there is a pleasing view promised. Make your room arrangements so a view from your windows is easily possible.

Take into consideration the number of people who are going to use a room and what they will probably be doing when they are in the room.

Change your rooms from time to time. Various pieces of furniture show up better in different room arrangements.
